Travel information

Cork Airport is the second largest of the three principal international airports in the Republic of Ireland, after Dublin and ahead of Shannon. It is located 6.5 km south of Cork city. Cork airport services over 50 cities through Europe and the UK and 100s more via:

- o London Heathrow
- o Amsterdam (main hubs)
- o London Stanstead
- o Paris (Charles de Gaulle)
- o Manchester.

More information is available at <http://www.corkairport.com/>

Shannon Airport is on the west coast of Ireland 24 kilometres north of Limerick city, 22 kilometres south of Ennis town and 90 kilometres south of Galway and 142 km from Cork. Participants flying from Boston or JFK can Shannon or Dublin. There is a bus service from Shannon Airport to Cork. Bus Éireann run the highest frequency direct services to and from Shannon Airport. All services on the Cork corridor pass through the Airport. More information can be found at: <https://www.flyshannon.ie/>. For information about busses, please visit: www.buseireann.ie

The main airport in Ireland is Dublin airport, which can be reached through most cities in Europe and North America. Both bus and train services are available from Dublin to Cork. It is recommended that participants coming into Dublin Airport use the Aircoach Bus Service as it operates directly from the airport to Cork city and takes about 2hrs 45 mins. Bus Eireann operates direct daily coach services to and from Dublin Airport nationwide. In order to access the train service to Cork participants will have to go into Dublin city centre and at peak traffic times this would add a considerable amount of time to your journey.
